Fees & Cost Sharing

The cost of permanent residence sponsorship depends on the sponsorship eligibility category (to be determined upon initial review) and case complexity, and involves immigration attorney fees, U.S. federal government filing fees, and other fees such as recruitment costs, record-keeping and administrative costs, mailing fees, translation fees, and other incidental expenses. Below is a summary of the primary steps and estimated costs for each. More information can be found on <https://icenter.tufts.edu/departments/permanent-residents>.

- 1) PERM Labor Certification and Recruitment Costs: Costs related to PERM must be paid for by the department, and cannot be passed to the employee via contribution or salary reduction. The PERM process is required for most permanent residency processes unless an employee qualifies for a first preference category due to outstanding achievement in their field or a second preference with a National Interest Waiver. The estimated costs for this portion of the process range from $3000-$5000 depending on the position. Additional costs may be incurred if a labor market test, involving advertising, is required.

- 2) Form I-140 Petition for Immigrant Worker: Beginning March 2025, Tufts University departments will be responsible for all fees related to the Form I-140, except for premium processing fees (except when required for the employee to continue work or covered by a school's pre-existing sponsorship policy). This portion of the process is required for all permanent residency petitions, although the cost varies depending on the permanent residency eligibility category. The estimated costs the for EB-2 PERM eligibility category is $1500-$2500, including filing fees. Estimated costs for this step for the EB-1B category are $4500-$5500, including filing fees (Note: prior PERM step not required for this category). The optional government premium processing fee is $2965.

Optional premium processing:

- 3) I-485 Application to Adjust Status: The individual employee is generally responsible for attorney and filing fees to adjust their immigration status within the United States. Tenure-track employees in certain schools may be eligible for a capped contribution towards these fees based on school-based sponsorship policies. The estimated costs for this step range from approximately $3000 for the employee, not including costs for any dependent family members, which are always the responsibility of the employee.
